

24th Annual Convention

May 24-27, 2012 Diverse Perspectives Chicago, Illinois, USA

- Convention Home
- Search Program
- My Itinerary
- Pre-Convention Events
- Affiliate Meetings & Programs
- 19th Annual APS-STP Teaching Institute
- Award Addresses
- Invited Addresses
- Plenary Sessions
- Special Events
- Student Events
- Invited Symposia
- Invited Talks
- Theme Programs
- Workshops
- CE Programs
- Poster Sessions
- Browse Program by Day
- Call for Submissions
- Program Committee
- Registration
- Exhibitors
- Hotel
- Restaurants & Attractions

Poster

Surviving Part-List Cuing: Survival Mnemonic Advantage Remains

Poster Session XI - Board: XI- 047
Saturday, May 26, 2012, 1:00 PM - 2:00 PM
River Exhibition Hall

Add to Itinerary

Josefa N. S. Pandeirada
Purdue University & University of Aveiro

Maria Salomé Pinho
University of Coimbra

The survival mnemonic advantage over pleasantness was replicated in a within-subject design using intentional learning. The survival advantage persisted when a part—list cuing procedure was used. There was a main effect of cuing, but no cuing X encoding task interaction was obtained.

Subject Area: Cognitive
Keywords: Experimental

PRINT EMAIL SHARE 